

"The entire history of philosophy represents the unresolved striving to answer the oppositions, to soften and erase the antitheses of the world. The fighting against the monster of opposition did not end in the suppression of thinking. On the contrary, it opened towards the intensification and the exasperation of thought. But the scars and the wounds of this battle are perceivable, together with the insinuating feeling of lassitude exploited especially by skeptics."

Mircea FLORIAN (1888-1960)