

"If philosophy is nothing else than the adaptation of existence in general to the metaphysical necessities of the human personality, then it is worth knowing the largely undisputed (but also usually neglected) fact that metaphysical consciousness couldn't completely fulfill its creative forces out of the framework of religious preoccupations. Moreover, every previous solution to these preoccupations becomes indeed fertile only in connection with them."

Nae IONESCU (1890-1940)