

“ A true, lasting literature that is enjoyable to us and original to others, can only be rooted in the living speech of our own people, in its traditions, customs and history, in its genius. Anything you may create outside the truly national genius will never be worthwhile or enduring – either to ourselves, or to foreigners.”

Mihail EMINESCU